HAIR DRESSING SALOON HONGKONG HOTEL,

W. P. MOORE begs to inform the Gentle-men of Hongkong and Visitors that he has reduced the price of Hair-Cutting to 50 cents. Having now in his employ three competent Assistants who are always in attendance, he guarantees to execute this class of work, in all its branches, with a perfection which cannot be excelled in any part of the World.

Hair-Cutting.....50 Cents. Shampooing.....25 Cents. Shaving.....25 Cents. Trimming Beards25 Cents.

MONTHLY CUSTOMERS TAKEN AT REDUCED RAZORS MOST CAREFULLY RE-SET.

Mr. MOORE begs to recommend his GOGO SHÄMPOO WASH to the public as unrivalled by any prepara tion ever produced for promoting the growth of the hair. The basis of this compound is made of soap root; the natives of the Philippine Islands never use anything else for washing their hair; they are never found bald, and it is quite common to see the females with hair fron 5 to 6 feet long. By constantly using this shampoo Wash as directed, you will NEVER BE BALD. The proprietor offers the Wash to the public entirely confident that by its restorative properties it will without fail arrest decaying hair. It completely cradicates scurf, dandruff, and cures all diseases of the scalp. It does not contain any poisonous drugs. By its cooling properties it allays the itching and fever of the scalp, which is the great cause of people losing their hair.

Mr. MOORE has succeeded in being able to put this wash up in bottles without allowing it to ferment, and he will guarantee it to keep any length of time in any climate.

THE proceedings at the meeting of the Legislative Council held on Wednesday afternoon were not of great public interest. In fact with the exception of the passing of an Ordinance, entitled the Banishment and Conditional Pardons Ordinance, and a vague reference by His Excellency to the proposed. Hongkong Observatory, there was actually no business of the slightest importance to the community at large, brought before the Council. And yet this particular meeting of our local legislators possessed several noteworthy features, to which brief allusion may legitimately be made. A further attempt to give prominence to the personal differences of His 'vernor's early departure from the Colony contains what is evidently an inspired, reference to the matters which led to the acrimonious personalities between His. Johnson which were so much out of place at a previous meeting of the Legislative Council. Beyond casually observing that the mean insinuations of the writer in the China Mail affecting the Governor's honesty and truthfulness, are unworthy of any independent newspaper with the slightest claim to impartiality and respectability, we have no desire to expose the shallow artifices of Sir John Pope Hennessy's personal enemies, man, so far as our experience of these he has earned." matters goes, would appear to have had not

We cannot say whether His Excellency for giving Mr. HAYLLAR cause for action; but we do know from the most undoubted source that he would be perfectly justified by the way, and could not, so far in question was won by "a short nose," as we can see, justify Mr. Johnson's There is no such term admitted, no such public business of this Colony, of the Council, when Mr. F. B. Johnson's attempt to elicit certain particulars regarding the HAYLLAR and EITEL esclandre was ruled by the Governor to be out of order, will be fresh in the minds of the public. It was generally held even by Mr. Jourson's own supporters that the honourable member had been led into serious indiscretions. We feel assured that the written protests against the Governor's ruling, sent in to the Clerk of the Councils by the hon, gentleman will be generally viewed as undignified and unnecessary. The following is the text of Mr. Johnson's latest protest against His Excellency's ruling on the disputed question of privilege:---

To His Excellency Sir John Pope Hennessy, K.C.M.G. Covernor of Hosgebra, and to Aratigoon Seth Hongkong, 1st March, 1882, I do hereby protest in writing against the decision of your Excellency, as given from the Chair at the meeting of the I egislative Council on the 22nd ult., whereby I was prevented from speaking on a question of privilege, from making the motion there m, or from explaining to the Council, or to the Chair, the nature of the question I wished to raise, and I request that this protest may be recorded in the Book of the Proceedings of the Council.

F. Rep. Rep. 2019. F. BULKBLEY JOHNSON.

The protest has been recorded in the minutes of the Council, and possibly that may give the honourable member a certain. amount of satisfaction; but as it is absolutely certain that, according to all rules of parliamentary procedure, the Governor had good grounds for ruling Mr. Johnson out of order, it would perhaps have been discreet to have accepted defeat with the best possible grace. We should regret exceedingly to see the Legislative Council made the arena for settling private squabbles of any description.

His Excellency will leave the Colony, Excellency and the Hon. F. BULKELEY probably early next week, on six months Jourson; the announcement of the Go- leave of absence for England. He will return to complete his term of office about on leave of absence; and the observations | October next, and during his absence the of the Hon. P. It is well and most unquestionably a grossly unfair known that his government of Hongkong attack on Sir John Pore Hennessy, with has met with the almost unqualified approval of Her Majesty's Government, notwithstanding indignation meetings and Excellency and the Hon. F. Bulkeley [protests, so that his reception by the Earl of Kimberley is certain to be a flattering

Whatever public opinions may exist as to the results of Governor Hennessy's rule in Hongkong, there are few people in the Colony who will not readily endorse the remarks made by the Hon. P. RYRIE in proposing a vote with reference to His Excellency's departure.

"I think," said the hon, member addressso contentedly leave our contemporary's ing the Council, "you will agree with me that inspired counterblast to the tender mercies | his Excellency has during his term of office in of the community, the public at large, who I this Colony laboured steadily for its benefit, will not be gulled or hoodwinked either and has been a longer time actually at his by specious arguments or barefaced false post than any of his predecessors within assertions. Although the task of judging a ponyrace is not a difficult one, it should never be forgotten that the "man in the box" is the only reliable authority in close finishes. He is in a line with the winning post, and if attentive to his business it is utterly impossible that he can make a mistake, at all events so far as the leading pony is concerned. A head is the shortest distance by which a race can be lost or won; defeat or victory by "a short nose" has never been heard of until this meeting. A horse's or pony's head is a comparatively large object, so that standing in a direct line with the winning post, the judge should never be at a loss to place the winner. Had Mr. Sher-PARD given his decision as "a short-head" in favour of Driving Cloud there would have been no ground for cavilling; for the general belief which exists amongst those who were in a good position to see the finish that the grey not the chesnut passed the post first-a belief on which we cannot give any reliable opinion as we were at least fifty yards from the chair-the "short nose" verdict is entirely responsible.

"An experimental tower for Nordenfelt guns has," says the Portsmouth Times and Naval Gazette, "been tried with satisfactory results in the Agamemnon, and as it is eminently desirable that the seamen or marines working machineguns for offensive or defensive purposes should be sheltered from an enemy's fire, the Admiralty are understood to favour the general introduction of these towers, if their construction on board different types of vessels is considered practicable by the gunnery and dockyard authorities. That the officers here may have an opportunity of judging of the value of the tower, the expenditure incidental to the building of one on board the Mercury, despatch vessel, has been sanctioned, and the Admiralty have also given a reminder that in reporting upon this particular experiment regard is to be had to the question whether such a protective arrangement would be possible in ships generally,"

Mr. Lister was also appointed secretary to the Board of Chinese Examiners, with a seat at the board, in 1876. The duties of postmaster-general and collector of the stamp revenue will be assumed during Mr. Lister's absence by hi deputy, Mr. Samuel Barff.

THE London correspondent of the Manchester. Guardian says :- Political gossips state that all doubt about the leadership of the Conservative party has been dissolved by Mr. W. H. Smith's dinner card. Lord Salisbury has a very fine house in London, and Sir Stafford Northcote has not a house in town. Last year, he entertained his political friends on the eve of the session at his son's house at Rutland Gate. This year he goes to Mr. W. H. smith's in Grosvenor Place. But that, it is said, is by no means all. Despite Lord Salisbury's high rank, the Conservative leader in the House of Lords is placed on the card of invitation after sir Stafford Northcote. The conclusion is obvious, so it is remarked, that Sir S. Northcote is now the acknowledged leader and the next Premier of the Conservative party. Mr. W. H. Smith is a very politic as well as popular man. He is no more capable of writing "to meet sir stafford Northcote and Lord salisbury" on his dinner card—thus ignoring the high personal rank of the latter-without knowing thoroughly what he is about, than he is of commanding the Channel fleet; and so it has come to be talked of to-day for the first time that it is an accepted fact that Sir Stafford Northcote is publicly recognised, with Lord salisbury's full assent, as his leader and the chief of the Opposition in both Houses.

> and present position of Panismalism is clearly traced and described. The writer shows that it was the feeling of hopelessness engendered by the Berlin Congress as to any profitable alliance with the great Western Powers being possible for the Sultan that first led that Monarch to conceive the idea of reviving the Caliphate in all its ancient power, and of making Constantinople once again the very centre of the entire Mahomedan world. A MEASURE quite revolutionary in character, called the "Municipality of London Bill," is still under consideration by the Government. should it become law, in the form in which at present it to the power of the Lord Mayor, but it would extinguish all inferior personages; and the Lord Mayor would become a sort of President of a Republic, extending over a new City County. It would have custody of belonging to such vast corporations as those of London and Westminster, the Metropolitan Board of Works, the Vestries, and District Boards, and would indeed possess itself of even ! the companies' plate, together with all the ancient civic symbols. THE RUSSO-CHINESE TREATY OF KULDJA.

The following memorial has been presented by the London Chamber of Commerce to Lord Granville: -- According to the sixteenth Article of the Treaty of Kuldja, signed on the 12-24th Feb., 1881, the Chinese Government has agreed to "diminish proportionalely to the value the export duty on some kinds of tea of inferior quality! exported to Russia by land: That this Convention appears to draw a distinction between exports by sea and exports overland, giving Russia the benefit of the latter: That, up to the present, as far as this Chamber is aware, no such distinction has been admitted, as regards China, by Her Majesty's Government, such distinction, therefore, appearing to be contrary to the Favoured Nation Clause, as granted by China to England, under Articles XXV. and LIV. of the Treaty of Tientsin (June 26, 1858): That this reduction of the export duty on tea from China overland to Russia, combined with difference in the differential duty on importation into Russia (which amounts to no less than 25 kopecks in gold—three-fifths of entire duty by sea) would, to a great extent, divert the export of tea to Russia from the London market, and cause it to resume its old overland route: That the tea trade from London to Russia has of late years been increasing, whilst the direct overland imports into Russia from China have been decreasing. The undoubted object of the Kuldja Treaty is to re-direct the Russian tea trade into its former overland channel, to the detriment of London merchants and of shipping: That the concession to England of the ad valorem reduction of duty on inferior teas, granted by the Kuldja Treaty, would have the effect of considerably diminishing the price of sound teas to the British public, and thus diminish the tendency to import bad or spurious qualities: That the Favoured Nation Clauses of the Treaty in Tientsin (26th June, 1858, ratified at Peking, 24th October, 1860) appear to provide that: "In no case shall British subjects be called upon to pay other or higher duties than those required of the subjects of any other foreign nation:" That the Russo-Chinese Treaty of Kuldja appears to have been ratified in August } last, and its adoption confirmed by a recent payment of the first instalment of the compensation therein stipulated by China to Russia: That other Governments, through their Favoured Nation Clauses, are equally interested in the extension to them of the Treaty of Kuldja concessions, and we have reason to believe that the German Chambers of Commerce of Kænigsberg and Hamburg have memorialised, or are about to memorialise, their Government on the subject: Your memorialists therefore Pray: That your Lordship will kindly take the earliest possible steps to obtain the application of the ad valorem reduction on teas of the Treaty of Kuldja to British exports from Chinese Treaty-ports.

THE PANAMA CANAL QUESTION.

The Panama Canal question commands more public attention daily, and is likely to be much discussed by Congress. News received here confirms the general belief that the project of M. de Lesseps will end in failure. The Times takes strong ground this morning against a Government subsidy, saying that if the canal is needed, and can be constructed in a reasonable time and at an expense that will make it profitable, it is only necessary to convince capitalists of the fact ! to get all the funds needed, "so far as Government protection is concerned," it adds, " we have no doubt in spite of the fearful muddle Mr. Blain made of it, that any difficulty interposed by the Clayton-Bulwer Treaty can be got of the way by friendly and sensible negotiations with Great Britain. The time for subsidies and guarantees of bonds has gone by. The public sentiment is more hostile towards Mr. Blaine than it was when he left office. There is practically only one sentiment concerning the tone of his depatch to Mr. Lowell. Even his friends admit that he made an inexcusable blunder." The correspondent of the Tribune, writing

Since the severe lesson taught her by the Geneva Conference, England will probably regard more closely the rights of belligerents, and not allow the Esmeralda and Arturo Piat to leave her shores until the definite conclusion of peace between these nations; but by sending vessels piecemeal she can evade responsibility for their acts. In this manner have already arrived eight torpedo boats, each a hundred feet long and of the estimated speed of twenty-one knots, and new compound armour plates for the Blanco Encalada and Cochrane are expected in a near future. This will render them a fair match for the famous Almirante Brown, of Argentina; but when the new 300-pound Armstrongs arrive they will be the most formidable vessels in this part of the world, with guns of the most powerful pattern, and armour proof against any but the heaviest ordnance. Although it is now generally believed that nothing will be allowed to stand in the way of an equitable treaty of commerce between France and England, the details which yet remain to be arranged are such that their discussion can hardly be said to have closed. It is well known that last stumbling-block encountered consists in the difficuly of arriving at an understanding on the subject of English cotton and woollen tissues. The substitution of specific for ad valorem duties on these classes of goods was not regarded by the English negotiators as an insurmountable obstacle, but the difficulty lay in drawing up a tariff by which the duties under the new system should not exceed those levied on the advalorem scale. Although the matteris fortunately on the verge of a settlement, it may not perhaps be too late to call attention to an article in the Journal des Débats, from the pen ! of M. Leroy Beauliëu, a writer who has never ceased to use his influence in the interests of proper understanding between the two countries. M. Leroy Beaulieu, fully recognising the vital importance to France of a treaty with her neight bour across the Channel, rather than allow matters to come to a standstill, through the persistent attempts of the French to obtain a fiscal advantage out of the substitution of specific for ad valorent rates, advocates the so-called "option" system, by the application of which importers of certain articles would be ensured against paying more than the present treaty duties. This method would work as follows. Specific duties would be Russiascem to show that we are not quite so far applied to such classes of merchandise as the Government might determine, but the importer, should he consider the rate unfavourable, would have the privilege of paying according to only the that, if a Jew before all things, the baronet is old ad valorem scale, provided he were able to certainly, in the next place, an Englishman, and furnish the Custom House with tangible proof that the specific duty on any particular consignment exceeded the amount levied under the him. His life may, roughly speaking, be divided present tariff. By means of this system the into two parts. During the first he was making onus of proving, or, as the French legal term money; during the second he has been giving expresses it, the "burden of proof," would rest away. THE LOSS OF THE DOTEREL.

PROBABLE CAUSE OF THE EXPLOSION. There is every reason to believe that the recent explosion on board her Majesty's ship Triumph has brought to light the true cause of the lamentable disaster by which the Doterel was destroyed, and the lives of 145 officers and men sacrificed on April 26th last. The court-martial which inquired into the sad catastrophe came to the conclusion that it was occasioned by the accidental ignition of the coal gas liberated in the bunkers, and special methods of ventilation were at once adopted on board some of the largest ships in the navy to avoid the recurrence of a similar calamity, By the accident to the Triumph, however, a new and startling light has been thrown on the whole matter. The explosion was traced beyond question to the accidental ignition of a "patent drier" known as "Xerotine siccative," and this fact has educed new evidence with regard to the Doterel, making it in the highest degree probable that her destruction was attributable to the same cause.

It would seem that in the year which has just closed there were three very similar explosions on board ships of the navy. The first of these, occurring without fatal results, called the attention of the Admiralty to the dangerous character of the patent driers, and in June last-a considerable time after the warning-"my lords" sissued a general circular not nearly specific enough as to the peril to be guarded againsturging caution in the storage of this material. Meanwhile the awful disaster to the Doterel had happened, but had been set down to other causes. Then before the year closed came the leakage on Phoard the TriumpL, the diffusion of the vapour cerning the rumoured intervention of the Ameri- in the ship's compartment, its accidental ignition and explosion, causing the deaths of three men and serious injuries to seven others. It now transpires that the Doterel also carried a quantity of xerotine siccative in her paint relations compels their departure, while Chili is room, and this was next the powder magazines. Further, it is known that immediately preceding the explosion some of the hands were employed in moving a vessel containing this very substance, and from which it was leaking and giving off large amount of vapour. This they were doing, employing lights in the room, ignorant the fact that the vapour ignites at a low temperature, and when mixed with the atmosphere detonates with a violence scarcely less than that of dynamite. These data would entirely agree with and explain the fact that in the case of the Doterel there were three distinct reports—the first probably being that the drier, and the other two of the separate.

chambers of the magazine. Since the explanations of the Triumph disaster one of the carpenters on board the Doterel has come forward to describe the storage of the xerotine siccative. It is stated that the room in which it was contained was separated from the magazine only by a thin sheet of steel. A barrel containing the drier had been burst by some means, and the exuding liquid gave off a disagreeable vapour. Hands were sent down "mop up" the liquid and to remove the vessel, and this was, being done when the ship blew up. The carpenter has no doubt that the siccative became ignited, and that it fired the gunpowder, This was only to be expected, because the steel plate partition did not actually cut off the magazine from the paint store-room, not fitting tight at the bottom, and, as a matter of fact, a portion of the fluid flowed through into the magazine under the metal plate. This matter will be at once referred to the committee now investigating coal gas explosions in the navy, sitting under the presidency of Vice-Admiral Luard, C.B., and comprising among its members Mr. .. W. smyth, M.A., F.R.s., Chir Mineral Inspector to Woods and Forests; Mr. J Abel, C.B., F.R.S., Chemist to the War Department; Mr. Charles Icely, R.N., Chief Inspector of Machinery; Mr. E. Warren, Chief Constructor, Pembroke Dockyard; Mr. James Dunn, Chief Draughtsman to the Admiralty; Mr. William Weston, Admiralty Chemist, Portsmouth ; Mr. E. Watson, Admiralty. The committee meet again on the 24th for the special investigation of the subject. The Government, it is understood, have also determined to re-open the Doterel courtmartial to inquire into the facts above stated.

A VENERABLE BRITISH INSTITUTION.

Sir Moses Montefiore, says a writer in Truth is among the most interesting and venerable of existing British institutions. He was born on Oct. 24, 1784—that is, in the first year of Pitt's long Premiership, while Canning still learned "repetition" at Eton, before Wellington had entered the army or Byron had seen the light, while Frederick the Great still reigned over Prussia, and Catherine II. wielded the sceptre of the Czars, and while the French Revolution was yet a thing of the future, though dimly foreseen by a few shrewd observers. It is wonderful to think of the men with whom sir Moses might have conversed, and of the historical events concerning which he might be able to relate the testimony of eye-witnesses. As a child he might have seen Wesley, Reynolds, Mansfield, Burke, Burns, Horace Walpole-to take at random r few names of celebrities who disappeared from this earth in the last decade of the eighteenth century. He might have been a spectator of the execution of Louis XVI. Indeed, if one supposes him to have travelled in boyhood, there is no end to the list of notable men on whom he might have been privileged to gaze. William Melmoth the translator, who died in 1799, at the age o eighty-nine, might have told the lad (already old enough to understand) anecdotes about the South Sea Bubble, the insurrection of 1745, the change of the calendar and the outery at the loss of the eleven days. Melmoth lived in times when women were occasionally burned alive, and men drawn and quartered. Four lives like that of Sir Moses Montesiore take us back, beyond the Reformation, into the reigns of Henry VII., Isabellathe Catholic, and Alexander VI. Three more, and we are among the contemporaries of Isaac of York and Sir Brian de Bois-Guilbert; from whom, moreover, recent occurrences in Germany and Brasenose, on their Eton reputation, ought also removed in spirit as could be wished. sir Moses to be considered; while Paul, of Wadham, Bailhimself declares that religious tolerance is scarlie, of Brasenose, and Todd-Naylor, of University, cely understood out of England; which proves may also be set down as promising men. As regards the old hands, Oxford is undoubtedly better off than Cambridge; but with respect to a thoroughgoing one. On the other hand, the country of his birth has reason to be proud of the new men the latter has the advantage. The rowing displayed in the Cambridge trial eights was manifestly superior to that exhibited at Moulsford. For this reason it is quite possible that the two crews may eventually prove to be morve evenly matched than is expected. - Overland Mail. prepared to satisfy. The thrift of the race, as Mr. Dickens observes, has been much overfated. of Consett, sued Thomas Bowe, of Consett, to but be a matter for sincere satisfaction that so Lord Beaconsfield, belongs to the sephardim with him. His honour said the law regarded rous and splendid have been his acts of benevolence, that he is, probably, a poorer man now than he was forty years ago. As sir Moses is the first of his faith who has borne the Ulster hand, so he was the first to receive the accolade, The Queen dubbed him a knight on the occasion of her first state visit to the City, in 1837, when she went to dine with the new Lord Mayor (sir John Cowan) and the sheriffs, of whom sir Moses was one. Only two years before, the first Jew sheriff of London had been elected in the person of Mr. David Salomons, when Lord Melbourne succeeded in passing an Act of Parliament to enable him to serve," sir Moses Montefiore is at least well-known abroad as in England. When he was a little younger, any Continental Govern-ment that worried the Jews had to reckon with him, and found that he was not to be trifled with. This mild-mannered, yet rather positive, Hebrew seemed always to have the English Cabinet behind him-the Chancellor of the Exchequer being possibly a link to connect the interests of sir Moses with the action of the secretary of state for Foreign Affairs. No amateur diplomatist ever effected so much for the cause he had at heart.

THE UNIVERSITY BOAT-RACE.

In the course of a few days the presidents of the University Boat Clubs at Oxford and Cambridge will be busily engaged preparing for the coming encounter. When once the crews get regularly to work the task of selection will rapidly proceed, a definite settlement of the crews will soon he arrived at, and by the second or third week in March the rival Blues will once more make their appearance on the metropolitan tideway. A large number of new hands are not likely to be needed this year at either university. The Oxonians will not require more than four, and possibly only three, new hands; and at Cambridge (where practice commenced on Jan. 18) there will probably be the same number of old hands at the president's disposal. Of the Oxford "Blues," Buck and Paterson are still in residence, the last-named gentleman having been elected president for the ensuing term. West, last year's victorious stroke, and Kindersley, that year's president, are said to have consented to row once more, and possibly one other old "Blue" will be available. That the four gentlemen referred to above were the best of the victorious eight of last year does not admit of r doubt. Consequently the advantage which Oxford at present possesses over her opponents is by no means inconsiderable. The Cambridge crew of 1881 was a very inferior one. The best oarsman in that eight-namely, the gentleman who occupied the stroke thwart-is not likely to be again available; and the Light Blues will have great difficulty in adequately filling the place he has left vacant. Watson-Taylor, last year's president, will also be an absentee. only "Blues" of last year in residence are Lambert (the president), Moore, Hutchinson, Gridley, and Atkin. Whether all these gentlemen will row again is not as et definitely known. That the other members of the 1881 crew will be unable to give their services this year seems tolerably certain. Under these circumstances, therefore the Dark Blues will start under more favourable auspices than their opponents, West, who has twice stroked the Oxonians to victory, would be a most valuable acquisition to a crew at any time. The addition of another year to his age has of course in no way impaired his general physique; and although he has been absent from he river for some time he will probably soon acquire his old style, even if he does not eventually prove to be a better oarsman than ever. Cambridge are badly off for a stroke. Attempts will probably be made to obtain the services of Prest or Baillie, but there is not much prospect that these attempts will prove successful. Both are engaged in more important avocation, which probably neither will be able to neglect. The post of honour, therefore will lie betwen the two strokes of the trial eights of last term. Of these there can be no doubt that Atkin will ultimately be selected—assuming, of course, that none of should be sent without delay to the the old hands are prevailed upon to accede to the president's importunity. In the trial eight race at Ely, Atkin rowed a winning race all the way, and he had therefore but little opportunity in that contest of showing what he is really capable of doing. He row a long stroke, and feathers fairly well; but he lacks "life," and is in many ways inferior to West. The Cantabs, however, will have no difficulty in finding a good No. If Moore does not row at that thwart it will probably be offered to Beauchamp, of First Trinity. He held the same position in the winning trial eight last December. The seat immediately behind will probably be taken by Fairbairn, of Jesus. This gentleman comes of a good rowing family. Although untrained, he rowed to great advantage in the trial eights; and his weight-upwards of 13 stone-combined with good watermanship, fairly points to the conclusion that he will eventually prove to be one of the best parsmen in this year's crew. The president will most likely resume his old seat in the centre of the boat; and Gridley, having had considerable experience at Eton and Henley, as well as at Putney, will probably again take the bow par. Green, of Lady Margaret, and Gubbins, of First Trinity, may be looked upon as the most promising candidates for the fourth thwart, while Jones, of Jesus, who rowed in the race three years ago, will perhaps be located at No. 2. In his early days this gentleman was not a first-rate oarsman, and it has always been a marvel that he should ever have rowed in the race at all; but recently he has improved considerably, and his prospect of again rowing at Putney is To prognosticate how the Oxford boat will eventually be constituted is not an easy task. West, if he rows at all, will of course take the stroke oar, and Kindersley will go to No. 5. The seventh thwart might be occupied by Duck; but how the other seats will be filled it is impossible to say. Paterson will have one of them, while for the other four places there will be a keen competition. Ainslie, of Oriel, who has rowed two consecutive years in the trial eights, will probably be tried, and may be successful in winning his blue. Bourne, of New, and Puxley, of Activity still prevails in the share market, and a fair amount of general business has again to be chronicled. Banks have been a good deal inquired after, and the result of these inquiries has raised the, quotation to 112 per cent, premium, at which rate buyers are now unable to secure shares. So far as we have been able to ascertain, no actual cash transfers have been effécted since we last wrote. One share of the China Traders' Insurance Company changed hands at the current quotation. Hongkong Fires are in great demand at an improved rate, buyers now offering o to per share, ex div., without inducing holders to come to terms. 'There'are also a few small orders in hand to buy China Fires at 282 per share. The largest and most important transactions we have to report are in connection with the Dock Company's scrip. A'very large cash business has been booked at 52 and 53 per cent. premuim exdiv., the stock leaving off very firm with buyers at the last mentioned rate. We heard of some rather extensive time transactions in Docks, but were unable to verify them to our entire satisfaction, so withhold the particulars. Steamboats and Sugars are still out in the cold, and although Hotels are wanted at 102% not a blow has been struck. Other shares remain in statu quo.
